

Sensory Integrated Massage Therapy

Jakki Bosco, LMT

Providing Massage Therapy Services for Children with Autism Spectrum Disorders, ADD, ADHD, and PDD

For children with these disorders, research has been published indicating that massage along with regular sensory integration may promote:

- On-task & social relatedness behavior during structured & unstructured time
 - Lessening of erratic behavior
 - Increased awareness
- Tolerating more tactile stimulation
 - Decreased touch aversion
 - Body awareness
 - Decrease in sleep issues
